Hi Lisa – in follow up to yesterday's discussion, here are the remarks Jane delivered at the WHO conference. I'm also forwarding some communication between Ted and Steve last week. We're very pleased with the interest of OGC in this topic.

Hi Steve,

I know you remain interested in developments related to our efforts to elevate recognition and action addressing air pollution exposure as a major risk factor for non-communicable diseases globally.

I am sending along a short WHO hand-out on the topic that was circulated at the recently held First WHO Global Conference on Air Pollution and Health. We were pleased with the major visibility on this topic, especially for an event hosted by WHO/the health sector, including the head of WHO who is now all in on the issue. The event was very well attended...over capacity in fact, but it also had many very good presentations and a very broad mix of expertise and background. So, my work is done....As you likely know I am retiring at the end of this year—i.e. in less than eight weeks! Marianne Bailey and Brianna Besch (copied) will be continuing forward with this international agenda item. Enjoy.
